(A handbook for practical use of essential oils "Aroma Life")

Home application of essential oils "Aroma Life"

Essential oils are precious gift from nature, received with minimal human interference. The ones are strongly concentrated, volatile aromatic mixtures derived from blossoms, leaves, fruit, seeds or roots of plants. The process is made by distillation or cold squeezing. The essential oils contain biologically active substances that resemble hormones, vitamins, antibiotics and antiseptics. Ethereal oils have wide range of use because of their taste, aroma, biological qualities, cosmetic effect and therapeutical resources. When essential oils are used they are always combined with other substances in order to activate their influence and to keep their fragrant nature.

The most precious use of essential oils is in professional aromatherapeutical massages, by which after diluting with base oils, they could be rubbed in the skin. Any qualitative vegetable oil like almond, apricot, sesame, grapes oil, wheat, olive oil is possible to be used as base oil. Depending on the massage area and the effect we are able to represent some types of massage - a whole body massage, point massage and facial massage. Facial massage with massage mixtures containing essential oils is more often used about cosmetic and also healing purpose; it is mainly about embellishment and rejuvenation. Generally, it is used from 10 to 15 drops essential oil per 50 ml base oil for a whole body massage and as to facial massage it is used from 1 to 3 drops per 20 ml base oil. Anybody might delight in the benefits from essential oils at home. A popular way is putting some drops of them in hot water in the bath-tub (15-20 drops per 100-150 l water). Aroma baths are water procedures for treatment, prevention and beauty. It is good baths to be done in the morning or in the evening with temperatures of the water from 28 C to 37 C about 10-15 minutes. We recommend you deep inhalation because the essential oil can have effect also through the mucouse membrane of the nose and the mouth. Another opportunities of using the essential oils at home include inhalations, hot and cold compresses, their adding to finished cosmetic products for body or hair care (5-6 drops per 100 ml product), air refreshing and purification through aroma lamp or different types of natural fragrances (small clay pots without glaze), pieces of log spotted are appropriate for this purpose. The aroma lamps have a container in which you can put some water (usually 20 ml). After the water in the evaporator is being heated, add 5-6 drops of essential oil (pure or mixed). When applied on the body through massage, compresses, baths or added to finished cosmetic products, not only the essential oils easily pass through the skin in the organism, but they are also able to pass through the blood vessels and tissues. Therefore, they are spread all over the body and they affect not only externally, but also internally, as they have an impact on essential functions - exchange, excretory, endocrine, immunological. Thus, the essential oils stimulate blood circulation and metabolism. Vapours from the essential oils breathed through inhalation or an aroma lamp, depending on their content, may have refreshing, clearing, stimulating, relaxing, soothing, strengthening, harmonizing, emotional, antiseptic and other effects. Essential oils are dynamic because they enter the body, give their influence and leave it. One of the reasons of diluting is the necessity of keeping their continuous impact. Regardless of the degree of dilution they are efficient. They might stay approximately 3-4 hours in the organism as they start the healing process which can last a few days or weeks. The volatile oils are active because they work at some levels at the same time - on organs, tissues, fluids, cells and delicate energy. They have rich biological qualities - suppress development and kill microorganisms and parasites (intestinal, the ones that cause scab among people and animals), they have bacteriostatic, antibacterial, virusstatic, antiviral, mycostatic, antimycosidal and antiparasitological effects. The essential oils stimulate tissue recovery, help hair growth and contribute to the quick healing of wounds, ulcers and inflammations. They help the immune processes as stimulating the formation of antitoxins, work on the creation of phagocytes, have impact on the growth of the number of leucocytes

(with the help of massage, inhalation and by mouth). Moreover, the essential oils make the blood circulation better, decrease muscle tension and tumefaction, reduce pains, increase the excretion of urine, they improve the quality of sleep, refresh, have relaxing effect and diminish the level of stress. The essential oils are synergetic-they work together, harmonically. Most efficiently is the mixture from 2-5 essential oils. The experience shows that mixture of more than 5 essential oils reduces the healing effect.

ATTENTION: You can reach a maximum impact by the use of essential oils and avoiding some possible side effects but only if you follow these recommendations:

- Please, do not take the essential oils for internal use! Avoid eye contacts between the essential oils and the delicate zone around mouth and eyes.

- Put only correctly diluted essential oils on your skin, as you follow carefully the recipes and the written methods. Lavender and tea tree essential oils are exceptions, thus you are able to use them undiluted unless you are with a very sensitive skin.

- The essential oils should not be used without a consultation by a doctor in advance, as for patients with hay fever and allergic diseases.

- Every organism reveals different sensitivity to the essential oils! If you doubt of any kind of essential oil, do a test putting a few drops of the massage mixture, containing essential oils, on the internal side of your elbow curve, finally wait for 4-6 hours for a reaction of the organism. If you inhale through your nose by chance, wait for a few minutes for side effects. In case you get itching, redness or another reaction, it is better not to use this essential oil.

- In case essential oil gets in your eyes use a little amount base oil for dilution and absorb with a soft towel before washing your eyes with cold water. If there is a serious accident, please seek doctor's help.

- Before sun baths or irradiation with a solarium, do not use bergamot, grapefruit, lemon, sweet orange, mandarine and verbena essential oils. It is essential to know that they are phototoxic and might cause irregular pigmentation of the skin. Please, use these essential oils in the evening or at least 4 hours before exposing your skin under ultra-violet light.

- Essential oils are flammable. Keep away from fire.

- Essential oils are not recommended for people with serious healthy problems, for instance, asthma, epilepsy or oncological illness. They should also be carefully used by adults and weak people.

- Most of the essential oils are not recommended for pregnant women. They are not permitted for 3 year-old children, use them carefully only after a doctor's consultation for 6 year-old children.

- Do not use essential oils for a very long time. Daily spread of one and the same combination of essential oils on the entire body should not be more than 2 weeks, after that you could use another combination. Long use of one and the same mixture of essential oils for face care is possible, because a small part of the body is treated.
